

THE CHERYL BROWN GERONTOLOGY SCHOLARSHIP

Established by the California Commission on Aging

Partner with us to shape California's future! The California Commission on Aging (CCoA) needs your financial support to ensure future scholarship opportunities for students pursuing gerontology and related fields. As California's aging population grows, the need for skilled professionals in gerontology, healthcare, and social services is more urgent than ever.

These careers are vital to enhancing the well-being of older adults and ensuring a more compassionate, informed society. These careers are not just jobs—they are pathways to making a profound difference in the lives of older adults and ensuring that our society understands and values this essential segment of our population. By supporting these scholarships, you are not only helping students achieve their dreams, you are investing in the future. Will you join us in supporting this urgent and impactful mission?

Founded as Sacramento State College in 1947, Sacramento State has been serving the region for more than 75 years. Now nearly 31,000 students strong, it is the sixth largest of the 23 campuses in the California State University (CSU) system. It is an accessible and inclusive place of learning and achievement, a hub of diverse thought and intellectual challenge, and is intertwined with the community it serves. From research that results in impactful legislation to entrepreneurial ideas that blossom into robust businesses, Sacramento State continues to provide immersive learning experiences that benefit students, the region, and beyond. It is Sacramento's University.
